Performers from one of the local groups that took part in this year's Hackney One Carnival share a few words

OVER 7,500 people turned out for this year's Hackney One Carnival. They were rewarded with fantastic weather and amazing displays by 850 performers from 16 carnival groups, who paraded from outside Hackney

Town Hall to Hackney Downs. The procession of some of the brightest and boldest outfits brought traffic to a standstill as carnival groups danced through the streets. See more on pg 8 & 9

GO FOR NEW HOMES

By James Willsher

MORE than 100 new homes will be built on three housing estates, thanks to nearly £10million of funding.

A total of 115 homes are planned for Bridport House, Colville estate; Ottaway Court, Landfield estate; and Rendlesham House estate after the Government's Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) granted the Council the funding.

Construction work is set to begin next March, with homes scheduled for completion and renting by Spring 2011.

The Council has worked with Colville estate Tenants & Residents Association to draw up a vision for regeneration, involving improved safety and access routes to shops, schools, and public transport; a mix of buildings to ensure larger homes with gardens and balconies; and also public open spaces.

The aim is that Bridport House will be the springboard for the regeneration of Colville estate. Residents of Bridport House will soon be moved out to allow demolition work to begin, while sites at Ottaway Court and Rendlesham House estate are already cleared. The funding ensures work can begin on these first blocks, while the Council is also working closely with residents and developers on progressing the regeneration of Alexandra National, Tower Court, Bridge House and Marion Court estates.

The HCA funding is part of a new Government initiative allowing councils to build new homes for social rent for the first time in several decades.

Cllr Karen Alcock, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: "This is good news for residents, and demonstrates that despite the economic downturn, the Council remains committed to the regeneration of the borough's estates and to providing 21st Century homes for local people."

Message from the Mayor

Empire will strike back

THE Hackney Empire is an icon of the borough and the Council is absolutely committed to helping it get back on its feet.

It was very sad to hear that, following management changes, the theatre needs to temporarily stop its main stage operation for around nine months after this year's pantomime. However, the education and participation work that the Empire does with schools and community groups will continue.

The break in performances will give the theatre the chance to rethink the way it operates and the type of show it stages. This is to make sure it can attract bigger audiences to all of its shows throughout the year – as it does very successfully with its fantastic annual pantomime – and so has a long-term future.

I've been assured that the new team are successfully getting to grips with a large range of issues at the Empire, including the significant debt problem and that some shows simply have not been successful enough.

The Council will continue to support the Empire as we always have, and – along with the Arts Council – we are helping ensure the theatre is able to recover from these difficulties and return to as full a programme of shows, as soon as practically possible.

The priority for all of us is to see a viable theatre in the Empire for the people of Hackney and audiences across London.

Staff and pupils from Cardinal Pole Catholic School show minister Tessa Jowell how to get to grips with the Crimestoppers text service

Text could save a life

By

Students from Cardinal Pole Catholic School met with the Minister for London, Tessa Jowell, to explain how they are doing their bit to drive down knife crime.

The students have been learning about the national Crimestoppers text messaging service, which gives young people the opportunity to report knife crime in confidence using text messaging.

The initiative is based on research that has shown this is the method of communication young people are most comfortable using.

“Over the past year, Hackney has seen knife crime drop by 17 per cent”

The minister heard Year Nine students talk about the benefits of being able to report someone who has been spotted carrying a knife.

The project, which is due to be rolled out across the country, is one of a raft of projects where partners work together to tackle youth crime.

The Council and police also run Operation Blunt with Neighbourhood Wardens, an initiative where street patrols search and confiscate weapons across Hackney estates.

Mayor of Hackney Jules Pipe said: “Over the past year, Hackney has seen knife crime drop by 17 per cent with youth crime as a whole down by 32 per cent. While we recognise there is more work to do, through close working between the Council and the police, there are now 10,000 fewer victims of crime in the borough each year than there were five years ago.”

Shoreditch Festival has picked up an accolade for culture-led project of the year at the Regeneration & Renewal awards 2009.

The magazine gave the N1 festival the top culture honour, said judges, because of its range and quality of events, involvement from local people and businesses, and organisers' efforts to make culture accessible to all.

Judges were also impressed with its originality, ongoing impact, benefits to local people and its financial viability. The awards ceremony was held at the Royal Lancaster Hotel and presented by former political communications strategist Alastair Campbell.

Lyn Fenton, Regeneration & Renewal judge, said:

"This is a great project that clearly manages to punch well above its weight in terms of the quality and the range of events it puts on."

The summer event, which ran from 17 to 22 July, included a live performance from the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and a mini-Olympiad for young people. There was also a live music show, DJs and poetry from local poet Joe Dunthorne.

The festival, produced by Shoreditch Trust, aims to bring together communities through involvement in high-quality performances, cultural experiences and a programme that is inventive and entertaining.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Hackney Empire support

THE Hackney Empire – London's flagship variety theatre – is to temporarily close next year for a 'period of reflection'. The 108-year-old venue will reduce its productions during 2010, while it looks at its financial situation. The theatre said the decision was made to 'stock take' how the organisation operates, sells tickets and manages and chooses shows.

Clarie Middleton, who becomes the interim chief executive after her predecessor Simon Thomsett left by mutual consent, will oversee the running of the theatre and work with the board to change programming. Previously, she had handled similar situations at the Bristol Old Vic and Exeter Northcott Theatres.

A support package from Hackney Council and the Arts Council is also helping to assist the theatre's renewal.

This year's pantomime season, which stars veteran Hackney dame Clive Rowe in the show Aladdin, will continue to January 2010 as planned.

Food fraud

RESTAURANTS and cafes are being alerted to fraudsters claiming to be inspectors from the Food Standards Agency. Acting as food hygiene officials, they claim to carry out inspections then con substantial sums of money from businesses by issuing bogus on-the-spot 'penalty' fees.

The Council has warned restaurant owners that the Food

Don't pay bogus on-the-spot fines

Standards Agency does not carry out inspections, or hand out fines for unhygienic food or premises. Additionally, while Hackney Council environmental inspectors do carry out checks and may issue instant fines, immediate payment will never be demanded as the officers do not handle money.

You can also report the crime by e-mailing foodfraud@foodstandards.gsi.gov.uk, or report any known or suspected food fraud by telephoning the food fraud hotline on: 020 7276 8527.

Correction

In issue 216 of Hackney Today (21 September) a report on benefit fraud case incorrectly identified the person convicted as Gary McIntyre, when it should have been Gavin McIntyre, 32, of Upper Clapton. HT regrets the error and apologises for any inconvenience this may have caused.

£3.7million investment in

NEWS IN BRIEF

Customer Service Week

DURING National Customer Service Week, 5 to 11 October, the Council and other public services are joining together to help residents find out more about what's on offer in Hackney. Over 60 public and voluntary services are supporting the initiative, including libraries, health and children's centres.

Finding the organisation that provides the service which people need can be hard, so staff wearing 'here to help' badges will assist residents to look up information on the Internet such as a telephone number, or make a call to the organisation they need. Maps showing the location of public services in the borough will also be on view.

The Council wants visitors to give feedback on the customer services they receive during the week. Those who do, will receive an 'I Love Hackney' Oyster Card holder as a thank you. For more information, contact Hackney Contact Centre on: 020 8356 3000.

Recycling scheme expanded

FROM 5 October, you can recycle even more materials in Hackney. Food and drink cartons such as Tetra Paks and plastic packaging have been added to both estate and street level collections. The scheme was expanded in response to residents' requests, and Hackney joins only a handful of councils nationwide to collect these materials. While the list of recyclable material is growing, there are still some items that can't be processed yet. These include polystyrene and foam, plastic films, crisp packets and sweet wrappers, plant pot and Tupperware. It's also important to make sure that plastic packaging is free from food. At present, every street property in Hackney has a weekly collection for Green Boxes (dry recyclables), and Blue Bins (food waste). A Brown Bin service picks up garden waste for over 16,000 properties, while all estates and high-rise properties in the borough have a recycling bank. Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Hackney now has one of the best recycling services in terms of the range of materials that can be collected. This has been developed progressively and in response to residents' expectations and developments in technology.

"It's important now that everyone uses the service to its full potential to help towards a cleaner and greener future."

Millfields Waste Depot has been officially opened by Mayor Jules Pipe as part of the Council's commitment to improve waste services in the borough.

The depot is on the site of the old Power Station in Millfields Road, Clapton, and was redeveloped following a £3.7million investment by the London Development Agency (LDA) in partnership with the Council.

Previously used for parking the Council's waste vehicles, the site now also has a fully accessible public office; waste transfer station; two-bay vehicle workshop; fuelling system; and new vehicle wash. Speaking at the event on 23 September,

Mayor Jules Pipe cuts the ribbon to open the depot on 23 September, he was joined by John Wheatley, Head of Waste Operations, guests and staff

“A living roof covered in turf, grass and wild flowers provides insulation, while reducing carbon dioxide”

Mayor Pipe said: "Thank you to everyone who has worked hard to keep our waste services going and improving over the past 18 months.

"The redevelopment of the depot has been incredibly important for the Council, helping us to make the borough cleaner and greener while maximising benefits for our residents as we prepare for the 2012 Games and beyond."

The new office building was opened in March and houses around 300 staff. Its sustainable features includes a living roof covered in turf, grass and wild flowers that provide insulation, while reducing carbon dioxide and improving air quality.

The depot also has a new CCTV security system and high-quality lighting system that minimises spillage towards the wildlife along the River Lea.

Over the last six months two new 12-tonne compact refuse collection vehicles, and five compact street sweepers have been introduced to the Council's waste services fleet of vehicles.

IN glorious afternoon sunshine, Hackney residents gave up an hour of their time to celebrate peace and reconciliation.

Mayor Jules Pipe, Speaker of Hackney Cllr Muttalip Unluer and representatives from many of the borough's diverse faith, youth and community groups were among the crowd that joined the fourth annual Hackney Peace Walk on 19 September.

Mayor Pipe and Cllr Unluer led walkers from Hackney Community College (HCC) to London Fields. They were welcomed by African Dance Group Emashi, who also drummed throughout the walk.

Addressing the crowd, Mayor Pipe said: "The role of our young people in this cannot be underestimated and I'm really pleased to see young people participating today."

"The T-shirts that some of the walkers are wearing were designed by young people from the Frampton Park Youth Club, who wanted to spread their

The event, organised by Team Hackney, was part of the London Week of Peace.

There was a range of performances including singing, poetry and rap. Local artist Franklin Becks wrote a song dedicated to Peace Week, called 'My Refugee'. Other performances included 19-year-old MC producer and songwriter Bamboss, and 12-year-old Jeorgina, who sang 'Hero' by Mariah Carey and 'The Climb' by Miley Cyrus.

The celebration continued at Hackney Empire where the Robert Levy Foundation staged performances and video productions from HCC students.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Hotelier's smoking conviction

THE owner of a Stoke Newington hotel has been fined over £1,000 for flouting the smoking ban.

Murat Mehmet, from the Rose Hotel, Stoke Newington Road, N16, pleaded guilty to letting guests smoke in his establishment and smoking there himself.

Thames Magistrates Court heard that environmental health officers had visited the hotel in June 2007, when they told Mehmet about the new legislation, and the need to install no smoking signs. Yet when they returned on 26 February, they found he was breaking the law.

Mehmet pleaded guilty to his failure to prevent smoking in a smoke-free premises, and of smoking in a smoke-free place on 23 September. He received a £200 fine for each offence and was ordered to pay the Council's costs. The fine came to £1,273. Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "When we discover businesses that are not keeping their work-places safe from smoke, we will seek to prosecute."

Homes for Hackney

TWO developments that will bring new homes, business space and a hotel to the borough have been granted planning permission.

A hotel, office and retail space and student housing will be built on East Road, N1. The development will be virtually car free with six disabled parking bays and 379 secure cycle spaces.

Over 300 new homes will also be built on Wharf Road, N1, including 95 affordable properties and many three and four bedroom units. The development, which overlooks Wenlock Basin, will also include flexible business space.

Planning permission for both is subject to the developers agreeing a Section 106 agreement with the Council. This requires them to contribute towards community facilities, such as open space, new school places, libraries, and investing in streets and footpaths.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, said: "These schemes show that during the economic downturn, investment in Hackney continues apace."

Walking down memory lane

WHERE were you when Usain Bolt won Olympic titles in world record times or Sebastian Coe and Steve Ovett duelled to be middle distance king of the world?

The search is on for locals with vivid memories of the Olympics to share on film for a project by artist Simon Pope. He will be walking a marathon 26 miles on 7 November around the five host boroughs for the London 2012 Games. It is hoped that more than 100 people will accompany Simon along stretches of the route sharing their Olympic memories. The Olympics have been held in London twice before – in 1908 and 1948 – so he would love to hear from some of our more senior residents.

Younger fans may recall more recent events around the world when their sporting heroes made history.

The project was commissioned by the Olympic Delivery Authority and funded by the London Development Agency and Arts Council.

If you are interested in getting involved, Simon is holding workshops on Monday 12 and 19 October, 7pm-9.30pm, and on Saturday 24 October, 11.30am-4.30pm. For venue details, e-mail: passthebaton@me.com

Prepared for the long haul

By
Nick Rutherford

GENERATIONS of people in Hackney have grown up to always 'be prepared' – often thanks to the contribution of Phyllis Manning.

Now 79, the retired school teacher first became involved with the 14th St John at Hackney group when she was asked to 'help out with the Cubs' just after the Second World War.

More than 60 years later she is still there, helping teach them life's necessities such as how to cook, sew and build campfires – and still regularly taking them on camping trips.

Eleven years ago she was awarded an MBE for her services towards scouting, although she modestly shrugs off this achievement.

Now widowed and still living near the church from which the scouting group takes its name, what keeps her taking an active role in the organisation?

She explained: "I've always been interested in children. That's the beginning and end of it."

Indeed, she has four grown up children of her own and her two sons were – perhaps not surprisingly – scouts themselves. She worked in teaching from 1950 when she started at St Thomas's Primary School near Clapton Common, before moving onto various schools in the borough and outside and finally retiring in the early 1990s from an advisory role at Haringey council.

Lieutenant General Robert Baden-Powell started The Scout Association in 1907 with the aim of supporting boys in their physical, mental and spiritual development and girls have been able to join since 1976.

There are now 38 million Scouts and Guides in 216 countries – with only Cuba, China, Korea, Andorra, Laos and Myanmar not being involved.

There are 33,000 people aged between six and 25 waiting to join the organisation in Britain, according to The Scout Association. And yet the popular belief is that membership is dying off.

"There is more for children to do these days and more organisations which mirror the activities we do, such as going camping," Phyllis explained.

So what does she think are the benefits of scouting?

She said: "It gives children what they want and what they need.

"Gradually as they develop and grow older they need to grow away from their family and become members of teams and this gives them that opportunity. Also, children love to learn, although if you ask them that about school they might not agree. But if we take them to camp, show them how to light a fire or put up a tent, or even do a lot of the things they do at school, reading for instance, they will enjoy it more because we have different ways of putting things over and making it more fun."

Speaking about her long years in Hackney she explains: "It's an amazing area. There are tremendous libraries. We've have got more parks than any of the other London boroughs. If you want to go anywhere – be it for entertainment, sport or anything else – you can get to it from here easily. The people are mixed, very interesting and lovely."

THE GREEN GENIE

All your recycling questions answered

Q: I was pleased to read in the last Hackney Today (issue 216) that I can now recycle cartons and plastic packaging, but I'm concerned my Green Box is not big enough. What should I do?

A: It's great to hear that you are pleased with the Council's service improvements. For residents with a Green Box collection, there are a number of options available to make sure you can recycle everything produced during the week.

- Order another Green Box. They are free of charge and delivered to your door. They can be stacked when not in use to save space and are made of 100 per cent recycled plastic.
- Place extra materials in a plastic bag or cardboard box next to your Green Box clearly marked as recycling. These will then be collected as well. Do not use black refuse bags, however.
- Try to separate similar materials within the box. Plastic bags can be used for this, as they are also recycled.

To order a new, or replacement, Green Box call the recycling hotline on: 020 8356 6688, or e-mail: recycling@hackney.gov.uk.

The car park on Whiston & Goldsmiths Estate was turned green for a day – as part of European Mobility Week – to encourage people to think of alternative uses for them

By
Gracia Douglas

Residents from Whiston and Goldsmiths Estate turned out in force to enjoy the relaxed atmosphere – of their car park.

The Green for a Day event free bike check ups, films, gardening demonstrations and games for children.

The event – part of European Mobility Week from 16 to 22 September – aimed to encourage people to look at spaces set aside for parking and to think about alternative uses for them. It also provided advice for residents who want to give up their cars.

"It was a wonderful day," said Doreen Emerick, Secretary and Joint Chair of the Haggerston estate's Tenants and Residents Association. "Everyone who participated got something from the groundbreaking event that I hope will be repeated here and right across the borough," she added.

The event was organised with the help of two young architects Marie Perin and Grégoire Barraud from TICArchitecture along with the Council and Hackney Homes.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Sustainable transport is a top priority for the Council because we know that our residents are concerned about carbon emissions, congestion and parking in the borough.

"I'm pleased that we can support people to make greener travel choices."

Lending a hand in the garden

A GROUP of volunteers took up their tools to transform the garden of a local woman with multiple sclerosis.

E5 resident Raeanne said: "The transformation is amazing. I've never been able to go into my garden before, it means the world to me."

Housing association Family Mosaic launched its Garden Bank pilot project at Raeanne's overgrown garden on 18 September.

Cllr Sophie Linden, Cabinet Member for Sustainability, was there to meet volunteers and congratulate them on the difference they make in the community.

Garden Bank's team help sick or disabled Family Mosaic tenants to maintain their gardens.

The idea came about after the housing association received enquires from tenants with gardens who could not manage their upkeep; and was also contacted by other tenants who wanted to do some gardening, but did not have gardens of their own.

Family Mosaic is searching for more green-fingered volunteers who are willing to offer a couple of hours each week, as a further 60 residents need similar assistance. All volunteers are rewarded once they have carried out 25, 50, 75 and 100 hours of community work.

Learning about birds and bats

By Kate Gibney

A SERIES of events on Pembury Estate, E8, will see residents getting together to create a haven for Cockney sparrows – and bats.

Peabody housing association, which manages the estate, has teamed up with London Wildlife Trust to involve residents, schools and community groups in activities to raise awareness of their environment.

Work will include planting hedgerow species such as hawthorn and blackthorn to create a bird habitat; grasses and flowers to attract the aphids, caterpillars and weevils for birds to feed on; and workshops to make bat and bird boxes; as well as visits to wildlife reserves and green spaces.

The estate's PETRA Community Centre will be the meeting point for all the events, and is also the pick-up point for a guided walk and bird watch trip to Rainham Marshes' RSPB reserve.

London Wildlife Trust's Cockney Sparrow project officer and Hackney resident Mark Pearson will be on hand to talk about urban birds at a session on 21 November; and guest Ed Santry from the Bat Conservation Trust Ed will be giving a presentation about how to help urban bats on 8 November.

Two practical sessions on 29 November and 19 December will offer residents a chance to get their hands dirty. Mark is also looking for volunteers to guide to project.

Golden tickets are brandished by young film fans as part of the promotion for National Schools Film Week which runs from 13 to 23 October

Film week freebies

All stories by
Marcel Reinard

SCHOOLS are being given a 'golden ticket' to the cinema to promote the use of film as a teaching tool.

As part of National Schools Film Week (NSFW), from 13 to 23 October, teachers and students have the opportunity to see an assortment of films at the Rio cinema in Dalston for free. Organisers said the programme focuses on 'creativity and diversity' and will feature a range of films – both current and classic – that address challenging issues from different viewpoints from around the world.

NSFW director, Nick Walker, said: "The week

reflects the growing stature of world cinema and the ever increasing hunger from teachers for films from around the globe to give their students windows into new worlds and cultures previously unknown to them."

Now in its 14th year, the festival also aims to support classroom teaching by providing schools with an experience for pupils that links directly with areas of the curriculum.

The festival is free to any school that signs up. Current participating Hackney schools include Petchey, Lauriston, Princess May Primary and Tyssen Community.

Free lunch for a year!

THE School Food Trust is giving 50 parents the chance to win free, healthy school lunches for one child for a full school year.

In conjunction with the launch of the 'Little Book of Goodness', which has been developed to offer parents advice on school meals, the Trust is offering free school dinners to increase their uptake.

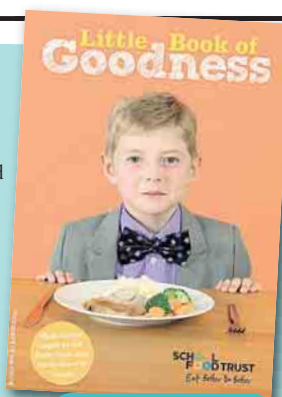

Details of how to enter the competition are enclosed in the booklet.

More than 750,000 parents and guardians across England will receive a copy, which can be requested by contacting their children's school.

Prue Leith, School Food Trust chair, said: "We want to take the pressure off parents and make sure they have all the information they need to make the right meal choice for their child. That's why we created the 'Little Book of Goodness' – to help ease this process for parents and hopefully put some of their anxieties to rest.

"School meals are now the healthiest they've ever been. But many parents still don't realise that choosing school dinners really is the best way to make sure their children are getting the nutrients they need to help them learn and succeed."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Aspirational thinking encouraged at the LSE

Black to the future at LSE

THE London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE) has invited young black Hackney people to its college for an event to promote higher education and top-level career avenues.

As part of Black History Month, the college is set to produce a series of free workshops to discuss aspirational thinking, such as the definition of success, how to set goals – and achieve them – as individuals.

In addition, there will be speakers addressing parenting issues such as supporting children through the educational process.

Elly Hobson, LSE's Widening Participation & Community Engagement Manager, said: "It's important to endorse and demystify post-16 options to students so that they can make the right decisions for themselves and their education."

The Black to the Future conference will take place on Saturday, 10 October, in the New Academic Building at The London School of Economics from 10am to 4pm. It is open to students (aged 13-16) from London as well as their families, teachers and youth group leaders. For more info visit: www.black-to-the-future.co.uk

New diploma

More than 30 students from Cardinal Pole Catholic School and Hackney Community College are the first in the borough to enroll on the advanced level of a new qualification that offers an alternative to GCSEs and 'A' levels. The diploma in Society, Health & Development focuses on the health, children's services, community justice and adult social care sectors.

Diploma induction session

As well as acting as a stepping stone for further education, the course can also lay the foundation for careers in social work, counselling and educational psychology. Diplomas were rolled out nationwide last year. Speaking at an induction session, run by Inspire!, Brenna Dunne, 16, from Cardinal Pole, said: "I chose the diploma because I would like to work with children, but I don't know exactly how yet. This seems to open up so many different career pathways for you."

If Eddie Izzard is calling you 'the most dangerously funny man on the planet', chances are you're on to a winner or have the stage persona of a nonsensical loon. Whichever way, Chris Lynam, with professional partner Kate McKenzie, has received a grand introduction from critics for the lead up to Pop Club Cabaret, the upcoming show at Rich Mix.

The duo will compeer a night of variety from every corner of the globe, if the world was a twisted beast with a penchant for popcorn. So ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls, prepare for the sublime and the grotesque, the conserved and the chaotic, and somebody doing something very dangerous with fireworks – the circus is coming to town. Popcorn Club Cabaret takes place at Rich Mix on 16 October, 20 November and 11 December. ## REVIEW

Tent London

By Jonathan Lyons

On a gorgeous autumn day, it was the perfect time to sit upon my designer Brompton and pedal down to Tent London: a multi-discipline design show featuring some of the best in vintage and contemporary design. It took place at the warehouse styled Truman Brewery in Shoreditch's Brick Lane and offered an interesting space for designers to showcase their work. Coming from a design background myself, I was really impressed with the innovation in both the use of exhibition space and actual products that were on display. There was a great mix of digital, product and textile design and a wealth of new blood showcasing their wares. Following a small and personal display format added to the event's character – and the feeling that the participating designers had contributed a lot of passion and time to their ideas. If I had to choose a favourite, I would be biased and go for some of the digital installations – as a digital designer myself – because they were innovative, interactive and really quite fun to play with. It's great to see such creativity and dedication in design and it's only fitting that it be displayed within such a creative hub.

The outstanding achievements of the borough's young people were celebrated at the 10th annual Hackney Youth Awards.

More than 300 guests attended the event at Ocean, in Mare Street, which was compered by BBC Radio 1 host Ras Kwame.

The judging process and awards night was organised by young people themselves, including some of last year's winners.

The eight main award categories for 2009 included a Higher Achievement Award for Queensbridge Football Team who won this year's Five Boroughs' football tournament. Other winners included Kelly-Louise Edward in the Citizenship category; Lindsay Jones for Personal Achievement; Sarai Neale for Peer Education; Rachel Piper for Environment; and Aisha Koia for Special Contribution. The Group Award was won by Luminous.

Speaking after the event on 24 September, Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children Services, said: “Congratulations to all involved, these young people are an inspiration for their peers. The awards are an important way for us to celebrate and showcase the talent and commitment of young people in Hackney, and are a fantastic rebuttal to the negative portrayal of some of our young people.”

The awards are organised by Hackney Youth Service, Hackney Voluntary Action, Rising Tide, Hackney Homes and the Metropolitan Police.

PIONEERING work in Uganda is the theme of photography show Strength and Hope, which opens in World Mental Health Week.

It features the work of award-winning photographer Hannah Maule-ffinch, who was commissioned in 2004 by The Butabika Link – an exchange programme created by the East London NHS Foundation Trust and Ugandan Mental Health services. The images were mainly shot at Butabika Hospital, Uganda's only referral mental health institution. The programme has run training and projects on subjects such as post-traumatic stress and child mental health.

Hannah also visited remote areas benefiting from the service with Trust staff and Ugandan health professionals. Co-ordinator, Cerdic Hall, said: "The photographs capture so well the incredible strength and resilience of Ugandans suffering from mental illness. East London has an opportunity to learn so much more about working across barriers, but most of all we are inspired to be part of the solution.”

The week will also be celebrated in Hackney at The Round Chapel, from 11am to 4pm, on 8 October. Activities include photography, dance and poetry along with workshops on therapies and well-being and recovery.

The event is run by Hackney Community Services, local voluntary groups and NHS mental health services.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Have your say in local health

THE public can now have a say in how healthcare is run locally following a call for 'People's Platforms' by North-East London's Primary Care Trusts.

Local hospitals along with primary and community health are the main areas under review. Working groups have investigated urgent surgery and medicine, children's services, maternity and newborn services.

Joint clinical director for the programme, Dr Mike Gill, Medical Director and Consultant Geriatrician at Newham University Hospital NHS Trust, said: "Our aim is to improve the health of residents and ensure that if people are ill, they get the right services at the right location from the best clinical teams." For more details call: 020 7092 5233, e-mail: healthforumel@thpct.nhs.uk, or visit: www.healthforumel.nhs.uk

Choose community chest

A POT of money is available from the local NHS to support projects that promote the idea of being a healthy weight among residents. As well as eating healthily, the aim is to encourage

Funds for healthy eating projects physical activity, emotional resilience and well-being. The project hopes to attract small voluntary sector organisations, tenants and residents associations, especially those involving children and older people, and residents from black and ethnic minority communities. The first category of funding will cover 15 projects for up to £1,000 each. A second is for eight projects up to £7,500 each. A number of criteria will be used to make decisions on funding. These include factors such as the wishes of local residents, their needs, likely health benefits, value for money, innovation and experience of managing public grants. Proposals must be received by 12noon, Friday, 30 October. For further details call: 020 7683 4044; or visit: www.cityandhackney.nhs.uk/news

The world comes to Hackney

A PARTY with an international flavour celebrated the work of carers at the new and improved City & Hackney Carers Centre on 30 September. Music, dance and exotic dishes gave spice to an event recognising the role of carers.

A magic show and Bollywood dance display were highlights from a day that allowed guests to discover more about everything from an old English teashop to a Turkish bazaar.

It's hoped the facilities will become a centre of well-being for carers who make big sacrifices without any financial reward. Unpaid caring work saves up to £87billion a year. The centre offers welfare advice, counselling and therapies for unpaid carers over 18. It also offers extra support for younger and older carers, and those with mental health problems and learning disabilities.

Hackney has long been associated with the clothing and footwear industry. Many City-based manufacturers had factories or warehouses in the borough, where land was cheaper, but still within reach of central London shops.

One well-established clothing firm was founded in 1857 by John Lloyd and George Gladman in Wood Street, EC1. It specialised in shirts, and later, collars and cravats. The company expanded steadily and soon needed additional premises on Wood Street, and Cheapside. In 1861, Gladman was replaced by Gregory Culling Attree. Five years later, JE Smith, a Ludgate Hill retailer joined, and for the next 100 years it was known as Lloyd, Attree and Smith.

The firm cemented its reputation with items such as the 'octagon tie'. In 1888, John Edward Lloyd took over as partner from his father and a year later the firm bought a large new factory in Great Eastern Street. Disaster struck, however, in 1898, when a large fire destroyed most of the factory.

Finally, a site was found in Shacklewell Lane, E8, close to the firm's offices and warehouses. The new factory opened in 1899 and covered about 30,000 square feet with a licence to hold up to 600 people. The advent of electricity around this time revolutionised working conditions. In 1938, a modern warehouse was built on the site adjoining the Dalston factory and their Wood Street warehouse moved there in 1939. The firm maintained a City office and a showroom in Wood Street. Lloyd Attree & Smith continued to occupy the premises in Shacklewell Lane up until the 1970s. It celebrated its centenary in 1957.

It was two wheels good for cyclists as cars were banished from the roads for a day in central London.

Around 65,000 bike owners took in some of Capital's most famous sites as part of the Mayor of London's Skyride event to encourage more people to get on their bikes. Roads were closed to traffic in Westminster and the City of London over the weekend of 19-20 September to make way for riders and spectators who came to see the conclusion of 86km road race the Tour of Britain. Olympic gold medalist Chris Hoy and the London Mayor, Boris Johnson, joined in the following nine-mile Skyride event, which took in Buckingham Palace, Trafalgar Square and the Tower of London. A spokesperson for the Mayor of London said: “One of the major deterrents people had for not cycling was lack of confidence and the fear of safety. The day was a chance for people who hadn't cycled for a long time to get more confident on the roads.”

NEWS IN BRIEF

Ticket to ride

FARE dodgers got an unexpected surprise when police and ticket inspectors stepped up checks on a busy bus route. On 18 September, eight police officers alongside 11 community support officers and 15 ticket inspectors patrolled the Graham Road part of the 38 route in a move to target fare evaders. It resulted in 1,677 passengers and 43 buses being checked. Inspectors issued 72 penalty fares and 34 people were reported for consideration of prosecution by Transport for London (TfL). The police also made one arrest.

Elizabeth Ajala, from TfL, said: “Fare evaders cost Londoners in the region of £30million in 2008. This money could and should be used to further improve the service.” Penalties for fare evasion range from £50 to £1,000.

Make it count

FREE workshops in drama, film production, theatre and media theory are being offered to young people during October half-term. The ‘Make your Messages Count’ workshops aim to give 15 to 19-year-olds a first-hand taste of real media work by giving them a say in how the Council communicates local services and safety measures to young people. It has been organised by the Council's Road Safety Team and will also give attendees experience in radio, new media and publicity.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “I hope many will take this opportunity to help us improve how we communicate with all our residents.”

The workshops will run from 27 to 30 October, 10am-4pm, at Abbot Street Studios, E8. For more info, or to book a place, contact Sandra Agbabiaka on: 020 8356 8364 or e-mail: sandra.agbabiaka@hackney.gov.uk

Walk to school and get fit

THOUSANDS of children from across the UK will be joining forces with those in over 40 countries worldwide this month to celebrate the benefits of walking to school.

Walk to School Month is a national campaign run by charity Living Streets. This year's theme is ‘count me in’ and will focus on measuring physical activity and helping pupils discover how easy it is to reach the recommended daily 60 minutes of moderate physical activity.

Around half of children don't walk to school regularly, 41 per cent are driven, despite the average distance to primary schools being around a mile.

Teachers often report that those pupils who walk to school are more attentive. By walking to school and back each day, the average child will already be doing more physical activity than is provided for by the national curriculum.

Tony Armstrong, Chief Executive of Living Streets, said: “When children are bundled from front door to car door, they miss out on the opportunity to socialise with friends, get to know their community, and burn off some energy before getting their heads down in the books.”

The Walk to School campaign is delivered in partnership with local councils including Hackney.

Hackney is now recognised as the most improved Council in the UK, serving one of the most diverse populations. Regeneration is improving housing, public services and transport links. Crime is falling. Exam results are up. The Olympics are coming...

Job vacancies

Neighbourhoods & Regeneration

Recycling Assistant

£25,263 - £26,724

Closing date: 16 October

Part of a committed, forward-thinking and ambitious team, you'll assist with kerbside, estate and bring site recycling schemes. This will include helping with administration and organisation of the schemes, promoting them and monitoring their performance. Credible and confident with good written communication, you should be able to present information clearly and precisely. The ability to shift your focus to meet changing priorities is essential. Helping to implement our waste and recycling strategy, you will work to develop the service we provide and contribute to achieving our objectives. This will involve assisting in the execution and monitoring of action plans that turn strategic objectives into reality. You should bring to the role experience of the waste management and recycling sector, and a grasp of the challenges of inner city recycling.

Finances & Resources

All of the posts below require practical experience of working in a housing benefit environment, together with a comprehensive understanding of the legislation that governs the administration of housing benefit and Council Tax benefit. As well as being able to explain complex information to a range of customers.

Claims Completion Officer

£25,515 - £27,009

Closing date: 19 October

You'll proactively help Hackney residents make and update their housing and Council Tax benefits. This will include home visits, inviting clients to your office, writing and responding to letters, and attending outreach surgeries and events. You'll need experience of explaining complex information in a customer friendly manner, both verbally and in writing, and being comfortable in an administrative role in an office environment. We'll also ask you to work on ad hoc projects including campaigns to help us communicate more effectively with our customers. If you have a good working knowledge of housing and Council Tax benefit, experience of IT and of explaining complex information to a range of customers, please apply.

Performance & Information Officer

£31,152 - £33,306

Closing date: 19 October

You'll provide a comprehensive management information and MS Office application support service to the Benefits Service. Your tasks are to create, maintain and develop our information processes and systems, and compile and produce reports. You'll need a good understanding of performance measures, housing and Council Tax benefit and a good working knowledge of the benefit administration systems, and MS Office software. You'll create, maintain and develop the performance and management information processes, systems and reports as required, and make reports to the Benefits Management Team. Good communication skills are essential, with a working knowledge of housing and Council Tax benefit legislation, regulations and working practices.

Policy & Projects Officer

£32,532 - £35,055

Closing date: 19 October

You'll scope, plan and deliver projects, taking the lead in formulating housing and Council Tax benefit policies and producing and maintaining benefit procedures. You should be able to write clear, concise briefing notes, procedures and reports and have extensive knowledge of housing and Council Tax benefits legislation, regulations and working practices.

It's a broad and varied role in which you'll lead projects, produce and maintain benefits procedures, and advise and brief on legislative changes relating to housing benefit practices, procedures, IT systems, and policies. A calm and confident communicator with a resilient approach, you'll have detailed knowledge of housing and Council Tax legislation and Comprehensive Area Assessment (CCA) performance measures.

We're looking for a highly motivated individual who will assist in developing a programme of change, and who will work on their own initiative.

Senior Benefits Assessor x 2

£30,345 - £31,935

Closing date: 19 October

To accurately process benefits claims, and check processed claims and amendments according to national and local standards, within reasonable timescales. You'll have extensive knowledge of housing and Council Tax benefit regulations and be an experienced assessor of all types of claims, with the ability to make decisions on cases effectively, responding to letters and considering revisions where appropriate. You'll be responsible for coaching staff in legislation, practice and procedures, carrying out quality checks and

Job Profile

Adrian Bedford

Benefits Team Leader, talks to Hackney Today about the Claims Completion Officer role

What are the main responsibilities of the role?

To help customers fill in forms, and guide them through the benefit claim process, including advice on the documentation they need to provide and how best to do so. This may involve home visits, telephone calls and dealing with landlords and welfare benefit agencies.

In what ways is it challenging?

You need to be sympathetic to customers from different backgrounds, and ensure they get all the help they need. You also have to be able to get the balance right between giving expert advice that addresses all their needs, as well as dealing with lots of customers in a timely manner. You will be dealing with some of the most vulnerable residents within the borough.

Are there any special requirements for fulfilling this role?

Yes – you need an appreciation of the importance of getting things right first time and ensuring the customer is the focus of all you do. Plus the ability to identify when people need that extra bit of help. You need a good working knowledge of housing and Council Tax benefit, experience of IT and of explaining complex information to a range of customers.

How is the job rewarding?

Helping people at stressful times and ensuring they get the benefits to which they are entitled is very rewarding. You are the face of Hackney Council in this role and you leave a lasting impression on all you deal with.

providing clear and accurate advice and support to stakeholders. We're looking for someone with a good standard of written English, who is a team player committed to providing a quality service to our customers.

Senior Control Officer

£32,532 - £35,055

Closing date: 19 October

You'll maintain the integrity of the housing benefit database on a claim and system basis and implement new housing benefit software. An effective problem solver and communicator, you will have good computer skills, such as Excel, SQL and Word. Your responsibilities will include testing new housing benefit software releases while ensuring the integrity of the housing benefit systems. You will also resolve all subsidy and integrity matters at claim level. With extensive knowledge of housing benefit and Council Tax legislation, you will have experience of project work and testing benefits software (particularly Academy), as well as of benefits error resolution and system reconciliations.

VACANCIES ON THE SCHOOL ADMISSION FORUM

There are currently two vacancies on the School Admission Forum: one for a Muslim representative (nominated by a Muslim community group) and one for a parent (of a child in a Hackney school).

The Forum has a key role in ensuring a fair admissions system that promotes social equity, does not disadvantage one child compared to another and which is easy for parents to understand.

The Forum is also responsible for monitoring compliance with the School Admissions Code of Practice and can refer objections to the Schools Adjudicator where they consider admission arrangements to be unfair.

For more information please contact Asa Melander, Secretary to the School Admission Forum, The Learning Trust, 1 Reading Lane, E8 1GQ by 26 October.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Hoxton Apprentice

www.hoxtonapprentice.com

Leon left school at 16 and found himself in and out of employment. Without any formal qualifications he was desperate to get a job he could be passionate about. Just before he was about to give up all hope, Leon saw an advert to take part in a hospitality-based challenge, 'Faking It'. The two-week programme at Hoxton Apprentice took a group of young unemployed 'fakers', provided them with basic culinary training, which culminated with them preparing a VIP lunch. Within two weeks Leon knew he had found the right career choice. Now in the third month of his back-of-house apprenticeship, Leon hopes to qualify as a commis chef in record time. Speaking about his experience, he said: "Hoxton Apprentice has provided me with the confidence and passion to really make something of my life. The support I have received from the whole team has been great. I just can't wait for the future!"

Pumpkin Soup

Serves 4

Preparation time
15 mins

Cooking time
30 mins

Ingredients

- 2 pounds (900g) of pumpkin flesh, cut into cubes
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 large potato, peeled & cubed
- 1-2 cloves of garlic, crushed
- 1 flat teaspoon of curry powder, mild or medium strength
- 1 bay leaf
- salt & freshly ground pepper
- 3-4 cups of chicken or vegetable stock

Method

- Boil the pumpkin cubes & the bay leaf in some water until nearly tender
- Sweat the chopped onion in the oil until transparent
- Add the crushed garlic, trying not to burn it
- Mix in the curry spice & stir
- Pour the cooked pumpkin into the mixture
- Add potato cubes, stock & salt & pepper, simmer until cooked
- Blend to a creamy consistency
- Serve with crusty rolls, delicious.

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house.

Six-month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain an NVQ in Hospitality. Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people.

Defence of the realm

Hackney Council is inviting views from visitors, residents and businesses for a new Public Realm Design and Maintenance Guide Supplementary Planning Document (SPD).

The public realm is made up of roads, pavements, signs, seating, cycle stands, trees, kerbs, lighting and green space.

The SPD will guide developers when designing and shaping the areas you enjoy in Hackney. To help us finish it, we want to hear from you on the areas you like and dislike, street clutter, road and pavement design, accessibility and getting around.

For more information, and to take part in this consultation, visit: www.consultationfinder.com/hackney and select Public Realm Consultation. Every completed survey will go into a draw to win one of five sets of theatre and cinema tickets. You have until 11 November 2009 to give your views.

£1million market

What improvements would you like to see at Ridley Road Market?

The Council is investing £1million to improve the market, its environment and the way it functions. Local residents, businesses and market traders have already had their say on this issue and the wider community now have the chance to comment on the design proposals.

A public consultation event will take place between 10am-4pm on Saturday 10 October, at a market stall on Ridley Road Market.

For further details on the design proposals and project updates call: 020 8356 7741, or visit:

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services.

They all hold advice surgeries where you can meet your local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

GIVING YOUTH A SECOND CHANCE

Liz Dewsbury, Operational Manager, Youth Offending Team

Liz, 51, joined Hackney in January 2005. Her work includes preventing young people from committing crimes and helping to stop them re-offending. She has spent more than 20 years in the voluntary sector working with offenders and those with mental health issues. Her team of 16 supports young people, and their families that are on bail, under court orders or community custody and secure cases. Successful projects which the YOT has piloted with partners include weapons awareness; building safer relationships; and citizenship schools. Liz is especially proud of the reparation service and community garden project, recently praised by Justice Secretary Jack Straw. She says: "Young people often want to work and give something back. We welcome the challenge to get them to understand and overcome barriers and the successful outcomes are rewards for us all."

By
Gracia Douglas

Hackney has among the highest numbers of young residents in London, and the Council's Youth Offending Team (YOT) provides support for young people, with the aim of preventing offending, or stopping ex-offenders falling back into crime.

The YOT is made up of representatives from social services, probation, police, the health, education, drugs and alcohol misuse, and housing sectors.

There are two main divisions within the YOT: statutory services and prevention services. The statutory services have responsibility for supervising all court orders for young people in Hackney. They identify each young offender's needs and provide support to prevent further offending. Interventions can include one-to-one or group work or family-orientated support.

The prevention side of the YOT works with young people at risk of offending and has a similar approach, assessing each young person individually to provide a package of support. Young people and their parents or carers are involved with every stage of YOT intervention, whether through a statutory order or prevention services.

The team also need volunteers to become referral panel members and work with young people as part of the reparation service. Liz said: "The Youth Justice Board offers a training programme and support to suitable candidates who can make a commitment of as little as four hours each month."
